

RETIREMENT FUND FINANCIAL FAILURE

Special Investigation Shows
Teachers' Pensions Losing Out.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 11.—The Wisconsin teachers' retirement fund is shown to be on the verge of financial failure by a report of Senator Antonie Kuehn, chairman of a special legislative investigating committee.

A fund of $13,351,741 with interest is shown to be needed to pay the pensions of teachers who are at present contributing to its support, the benefits promised them when they retired. The amount required under provision of the present law will amount to but $2,041,409 during the next 25 years, the commission found, which would mean that retiring teachers would be paid only one cent on a dollar of what they had been promised.

Proposed remedy of the committee calls for increase of the contribution from 2 and 2 per cent of their annual salary to 5 per cent, and for proportionate increase in the appropriation of the state.

Bill is introduced.
Reorganization of the whole administration of the fund is provided for in a bill which will be presented to the legislature shortly. It would establish a special fund for meeting the state for the purpose of meeting in full the promises which have been made under the act of 1911, so that no teacher who has been contributing to the fund will ever receive less than she had been led to expect.

The proposed law will bring within the fund all teachers of the state who did not join the fund when the present law was enacted in 1911. It was said, although the benefits to an old teacher joining now will not be as great as to the teacher of like experience who joined the fund ten years ago.

Investigation of the legislative committee disclosed that the assets of the retirement fund now amount to $655,000, that contributions of teachers during the next 25 years will total $2,041,409, and state appropriations for the same time $2,095,232, making a total of $4,841,439, which the committee estimates that will be due, amount to $13,351,741.

No State Guarantee.
Under the law, the state does not guarantee the obligation of the fund in any way. Senator Kuehn declared, "On the contrary, the law requires that the board of trustees of the retirement fund ratably reduce the annuities whenever the condition of the fund shall require such reduction."

The examination of the condition of the fund made by the legislative committee shows that a pro-rata reduction of 23 cents on the dollar will be necessary, unless the law is changed and additional resources provided.

If no change is made, and the fund continues to operate as it has in the past, it will require all the present assets of the fund, all contributions of the 14,000 present members as long as they continue in service, and all the appropriations of the state until the teachers now in service have retired, to pay the annuities to the 355 teachers who are now on the retired list, and to the 444 now eligible to retire.

"This means that the other 14,000 teachers in the state must continue to make contributions to the fund during their entire careers, but receiving a dollar of benefit for themselves."

Intrepid Woman Hunts in North

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Boston.—At Port Nelson, several hundred miles north and west from Moose Factory, where the lost airman turned up, a former Boston girl is living with her husband and braving the arctic weather daily. The cold and intense storms hold no more terror for her than the pure little blizzards she used to experience in staid old Boston.

She is Mrs. Myrtle Van Duskirk Thompson, wife of Sergt. B. H. Thompson of the Royal Canadian mounted police. Mrs. Thompson has the distinction of being one of the best teachers in the vicinity. She has trapped white foxes and hunted polar bear as successfully as the best of the natives, and no man in the arctic knows better than she how to handle a dog team.

Three out of four she was wearing when this sketch was made is trimmed with the fur of a fox she caught herself.

Port Nelson is a trading post and police barracks and there is no one to relieve Sergt. Thompson when he starts out on a job and no limit to the time he may be on continuous duty. Mrs. Thompson has no such trips of exposure as her husband, but the cold is as intense and the storms as severe at Port Nelson as anywhere her husband would be.

Her hunting and trapping, however, show that outdoor life in arctic weather has no terrors for her.

Mrs. E. H. Thompson.

Palmer Rules, Chicago Judge Acted Within Law.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Feb. 11.—Federal Judge Landis, Chicago, was within the law when he accepted the office of supreme baseball arbitrator while serving on the bench. Attorney General Palmer declared today in a letter to Representative Wetzel, Democrat, Ohio, who had questioned the judge's right to hold both positions.

Mr. Wetzel introduced today a bill making it unlawful for any judge to receive compensation for exercising the duties of an arbitrator, committee member or officer of any corporation. He said that if he could not persuade the house rules committee to give the bill a privileged status, he would call it up on the floor.

MOVING OF RED CROSS IS OPPOSED

A special appeal to Congressmen Clifford Randall and officials of the treasury department has been made in an effort to secure a modification or special ruling from the treasury department to allow the Red Cross branch in the Janesville postoffice to remain in its present quarters.

Under an order issued by the custodian of property received by Postmaster Cunningham no one not connected with the treasury or postoffice departments can occupy offices in federal buildings. There is no need of the offices now occupied by the Red Cross here for governmental purposes but under the order it must vacate.

Have you seen a hog around your home or store lately?
J. P. Smiley, Orfordville, went out to John Valtman's farm yesterday afternoon and bought a fine Duroc boar weighing 275 pounds. On his way back home he stopped off in Janesville to do a little shopping.

Following the hog along for about five minutes, he returned to find the boar knocked out of the crate and the creature missing. Bystanders said the boar ran down the alley in back of the Sheldon Hardware company, but search there failed to reveal him.

Police aid was sought by Smiley. Last reports were that the animal is still at large.

O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, who came to this country as a stow-away without a passport fail to leave today, a warrant for his arrest and deportation will be issued immediately. "I believe Rock county will regret abolishing the office of the county agriculture agent," said Attorney J. L. Sprague, Elkhorn, who was in Janesville yesterday afternoon. He said that the county agent and at the same time the Farm Bureau pays its own secretary. The county agent has brought lots of results to Walworth county.

Adopt System of Traffic Rules at High School

A rigid system of traffic rules which resembles a busy city is now in force in the high school in connection with the congested conditions in the halls between classes.

The system is the plan of principal George E. Dwyer. Yellow chalk is used to direct the pupils in various directions. On the stairway arrows indicate the direction and on which side one must travel. The main congestion occurs in going in and out of the main room on the second floor.

Slens of "Stop," "Go," "Wait," and "Proceed" are placed before any pupils are allowed to enter. In this way a scrimmage among 800 pupils in a building built for 300 is partially remedied.

C. C. GETS LIST OF
OUT-OF-TOWN JOBS

Through arrangements with the state industrial commission, the Chamber of Commerce now receives a daily report of 100 vacancies now open throughout the state. By this means it is hoped, according to L. O. Tolman, manager of the chamber, to take care of all applicants for work received at the United States Bureau so that men seeking jobs may be placed either here or in some other Wisconsin city.

It is announced that vacancies on farms are most numerous now both in this state and in Iowa.

REGISTERED MAIL ON

STOLEN AT STATION

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 11.—Registered mail, including $20,000 to $30,000 in currency, was stolen from the railroad station at Corbin, Ky., last night, according to reports today. The money was said to be shipped by a Cincinnati mail car and was to meet a steel company's payroll.

MILK DEALERS FINED FOR REMOVING CREAM

Milwaukee, Feb. 11.—Three retailers of milk in Milwaukee were fined $100, $50 and $25 respectively in dispening cream. They were charged with a second offense would bring prison sentences. At the same time disclosures were made of practices which for some time, if carried on throughout a year, might cost the city a "big" profit of more than $12,000, according to the city chemist.

The charge against the milk dealers was that of removing cream from milk purchased from farmers before selling it to customers.

Most Beautiful Blonde in U. S. Is Title English Artist Gives Her

New York.—Marion Davies, is the most beautiful blonde in America, and she possesses every attribute of the "perfect blonde" type.

Q. O. Hopper, the noted English artist, who came to America last year as vice president of the Decorative Art Group of Great Britain, says so. He says that the "perfect blonde" must possess:

Eyes that are spiritually over physically beautiful.

Skin like the English girl's (this should be peach blossom in color and have a pinkish tint in texture.)

Her mouth should be cupid bow.

Her proportions should be girlish.

Her hair should be abundantly liquid gold.

Marion Davies, who inspired Harrison Fisher to paint "Morning," and who Howard Chandler Christy called "The Living Girl on the Magazine Cover," so many and so good have been the magazine covers that Miss Davies posed for possesses all these, says Mr. Hopper.

Therefore, she is the "perfect blonde."

Said Mr. Hopper:

"A 'peach blossom' and velvet texture skin, with eyes just 'right,' allied to hair of liquid gold is the combination that makes for the 'perfect blonde.' Miss Davies has all these—more."

Here Mr. Hopper became almost enthusiastic:

"Her eyes are the most beautiful of any blonde I have ever seen in America or England. That is, they possess to a greater degree depth and spiritual over physical beauty. In fact, I cannot conceive the one without the other."

Mr. Hopper last year was asked to name America's most noted beauties and among them named Mrs. Louis Hoyt, Mrs. William Astor, Mrs. Charles B. Dillingham and Mrs. Byrce Wing.

Marion Davies is a Brooklyn girl of twenty. She made her debut on the musical comedy stage three years ago, later becoming a Zigfield favorite, more recently starring in film productions. She lives with her parents at No. 331 Riverside drive, Belmont 2, Dumas.

LITTLE EVA IS TOO MUCH FOR YOUNG GIRLS OF TODAY

Madison, Feb. 11.—The Wisconsin legislature was asked this morning to pass a law forbidding girls under 16 years of age from playing the part of Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Janesville theatre. The bill was introduced by a group of 30 members of the Methodist church of Palmyra, Wis.

The unwholesome effect of seeing so youthful a character in the play, as pointed out by the petitioners, who request that an older person fill the role of "heroin." Also the effect on the young actor of playing so central a part in the drama, was decided not to be in the interest of the child.

The bill was read in the assembly and the petition was referred to the committee on state affairs.

ASK LOCATION HERE OF STATE HOSPITAL

As one means of giving work to unemployed men here, the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, petitioned the state Thursday night to consider Janesville as a site for one of the state's hospitals. A bill now before the legislature. This action follows suggestion offered by the Gazette in its editorial columns Thursday.

Marion, Ill., Feb. 11.—Edwin Go Sante, 24, was hanged here today for the murders of Amiel Catecastra, 18, and Tony Humphill, 17, of West Frankfort. The murders precipitated the anti-labor riots at West Frankfort last August.

The giddy girl makes a merry companion, but a sorry wife. Love may laugh at locksmen, but it never smiles at the plumber.

There will be a dance in Emerson's Hall, Lima Center, Wis., Friday evening, Feb. 11.

BIG DEMAND FOR MONEY TO BUILD

Applications for more than $25,000 in loans have been received by the Building & Loan association here. It was announced to the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting with Fred Clemons, president of the B. & L., J. P. Hamplund, secretary, and C. J. Hayes, representing contractors. It was stated, eight houses could be started at once.

THANKS CITY.

A letter thanking Janesville for its efforts in the drive for relieving starvation in China was received by the Chamber of Commerce today from the state free library commission, which is handling the campaign.

FINISH CHANGES AT GAS PLANT HERE

The New Gas Light company has completed installation of a new machine for making gas for Janesville, work on which started last November. It now is in full operation. The increasing demand for gas made the addition necessary. It will make more gas than the combined output of the other two machines, which will not be absolutely needed now, although they are still being used during the night, according to J. P. Wortendyke, manager. There is now absolutely no possibility of there being a shortage of gas in Janesville.

Conforming with the laws of the state, the company is now testing and painting meters in residences and installing meters which have been tested.

TOBACCO MEN TO DECIDE OWN FATE

Meeting Tomorrow Should Determine Whether They Will Case Crop Themselves.

Tobacco growers of Rock county are awaiting with interest the results to be obtained during the meeting scheduled to be held here tomorrow afternoon. Then the growers will take action and decide whether it is feasible that they attempt to pool tobacco in the county.

There are more than 500 growers in Rock county. It is estimated that more than 1,000 pounds of the 1920 crop will be sold by the decision reached tomorrow.

Committees appointed by C. E. president of the Rock County Growers' association will report at the meeting. It is estimated that more than 500 growers will respond to the meeting.

The finance committee has interviewed all of Janesville banks to determine what offers and terms will allow in putting up sufficient cash to enable the growers to case the crop and then hold it for advantageous market prices. The growers at the meeting last night urged that the meeting be held at a time when the
crop is under way but all were skeptical about the growers having adequate backing to put "the pool over successfully." They want a system of direct selling from the producer to
the tobacco manufacturers.

The growers realize they are going to be opposed in their attempt to pool the crop. They want to know whether it is going to be good business or a failure to plant and raise a big crop during the coming summer. Many growers last week urged that the meeting be held at a time when the
crop is under way but all were skeptical about the growers having adequate backing to put "the pool over successfully." They want a system of direct selling from the producer to
the tobacco manufacturers.

All phases of the important tobacco question are to be discussed tomorrow during the meeting.

Gym to Be Feature of Y. W. C. A.; $5,000 Pledges Received

A social and athletic center for all the girls and young women of the city, where they may meet friends at any time and enjoy the privileges of a real home, is the aim of the committee in charge of the plans for the Young Women's Christian association, which is soon to be located on the third floor of the Gazette building, corner of East Milwaukee and Bluff streets.

The campaign committee, following reports made at the Chamber of Commerce this morning, announced that the campaign for the new building, which is estimated to cost $5,000, pledges already secured total $5,000.
The aim is to raise the money for the establishment and preparation of the rooms. Close to $1,500 was realized from the benefit musical given staged last week.

Most of the $5,000 pledged comes from private donations, the committee declares. The largest total amount is expected to be raised from small donations. The campaign workers stress the point that the organization is supported wholly by private subscriptions and it wants each person to feel that a part ownership in the club rooms.
A gymnasium, a portable stage,
kitchenette, social and club rooms, and a bathroom are the features of the new quarters. The committee is waiting for the bids of alterations to come in before announcing the budget.

Lounging Rooms Planned.
Sketches submitted by a local architect for remodeling the third floor of the Gazette building include a lounging room which will be fitted up attractively with built-in window seats, easy chairs, davenport, piano, reading table and lamp. Two smaller rooms which may be used as club rooms or class rooms have sets of windows looking out on Milwaukee street and French doors connect the three rooms so they may be thrown into one large room when desired.
The northeast corner of the room will be partitioned off into smaller offices for the secretary.

Large room for gym.
The rest of the floor, with the exception of the kitchenette, will be used for a lounge.

QUICK STEPS TAKEN TO CHECK TYPHUS

Plague Infected Immigrants
Arrive on Ship From Italy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 11.—The arrival at New York of another ship with typhus infected immigrants from Italy has led today to plans for emergency action by the American government.

After a conference with Surgeon General Cummings, of the public health service, Assistant Secretary La Porte, of the treasury department, announced necessary steps to prevent typhus infected immigrants from leaving Europe for this country would be taken.

Mr. La Porte said instructions already had gone forward to American consuls to refuse clean bills of health to vessels preparing to leave for this country whose medical inspection has not been satisfactory. In addition, public health service medical officers in Europe will make careful inspection of emigrants leaving for this country.

The New York state board of health authorities have the situation at New York in full control, Mr. La Porte declared and there is little danger of the spread of the disease from the ships to shore.

WHY JANEVILLE NEEDS A HOME AND CLUB FOR WOMEN.

In making the canvass for funds for the home and club for women in Janesville, the committee of young women is carrying out a need that has been apparent in the city for many years. With the addition of several factories that employ women we have been more than overwhelmed with the emphasis of the necessity for some place—some central point for looking after the social needs of the women who come here for employment. What is a manufacturer or merchant or other employer, to say to a father or mother who asks him what there is for the girl when her work is done except a lonesome hall bedroom and a lot of restrictions at her boarding place? Where can she go? Who will be her companions? What will she do for recreation?

What will be the reply to these questions? Will they be satisfactory? They will not for a truthful answer will be that their daughter will be entirely dependent on her own resources and have little choice. She must seek recreation at the few amusement places—the movies and the public dances if she goes out at all.

The Y. W. C. A. solves this troublesome situation for the employers of women. "Yes," can be the reply, "your girl can have the finest of influences—a home place where she may go, a club with excellent surroundings, and good influences here in Janesville without cost."

In this answer there is a summing up of the entire reason for the Y. W. C. A. The women who are behind the campaign for funds for this new club are not asking for much at this time. They have moved carefully. They have not planned a special building now for it is no time for that. They will do as many other cities have done, rent a club home, and make it ready for the members. There is no membership fee for the girls. All will be welcomed and in a hundred ways their social life will be filled. As an investment paying dividends in something tangibly at hand other than more money, the Y. W. C. A. is a most attractive investment. Dividends do not always come in cash; they may be paid in many other ways and one of the largest dividends, paid not quarterly but daily in the industrial life of the city, will be the contentment and happiness of the women workers here. One of the ways to bring that about is to establish the Y. W. C. A. as it is now proposed by the earnest women, behind the movement and who will call today and during the next week on the people of Janesville for assistance in making the club and home a reality.

Janesville can have no better advertisement to the people of the surrounding territory from which the city employer must needs draw his supply of working girls and older women, than a club home of the character now being arranged for. It is one more step in advance for Janesville.

The council must be commended for its support of the band stand construction. A band stand does not sound like a big thing in the life of the municipality, but it is of more than passing moment. We need it as a center, a sort of hub, or which much of the life of the city will revolve. If anyone can point out a better recreation than band concerts on a summer night or a greater attraction, we will be pleased to chronicle it. And while it is being done the stand should be erected to last and become a landmark of the city.

One by one the city loses its older people and one by one those who seem to have always been a part of the city's life, pass away. Forty-three years ago Isaac Farnsworth was president of the Gazette Printing Company and for five years was one of the directors of its policy and head of its business. In the death of Mrs. Farnsworth, who survived her husband, another member of this family, who have seemed to always have been with us, has gone. Mrs. Farnsworth was a woman of high character and much beloved and to her will be paid the tribute of memory and respect.

Kansas City has just passed a milk ordinance after a long contest with the milkmen over the advanced grades required. The conflict was chiefly over Grade B, pasteurized milk which may have an allowable bacteria count before pasteurization of 1,000,000 cubic centimeters and 50,000 after pasteurization. This, said the health officer, insures the city a good safe milk for all household purposes. Other grades define the bacteria count for certified milk especially for babies and persons who are ill.

Back to the East Side

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN
New York City, Feb. 11.—The recent news that Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt has sold her Fifth Avenue home, 150 East 57th street, has caused a great deal of consternation in New York. New Yorkers, on the whole, are not inclined to sympathize with the move. Those who take great civic pride in the appearance of Fifth Avenue hate to see the Vanderbilt home demolished, as it probably will be, and those who live in the neighborhood of Sutton Place are indignant for quite another reason.

Among the latter is a small artist colony, which has been extremely comfortable in this district for a number of years and which greatly represents the intrusion of the wealthy.

"It just means that we will have to move again," complained one such disturbed artist the other evening, as he sipped a tepid cup of very fair champagne in a small East Side cafe. "Things have already doubled on our street. In another month, if Mrs. Vanderbilt brings the usual value of her place, it will be sold and no artist will be able to afford to live there. It's simply beating us away from the place we are ruining the East Side. The dear old place is breaking out like chickenpox with fashionable colonies everywhere."

The artist then went on to explain that the housing situation was practically driving art out of New York. In a few more years, he declared, bitterly, it would be pushed into the suburbs, because it has become absolutely impossible to establish and keep an exclusive artists' colony anywhere within the city limits.

"Once we get out of a vicious cycle," he said, "we find a nice, quiet place, with a good landscape or skyline, and just get comfortably settled when along come fashionable ladies who immediately decide that they want it. They in turn have been ousted out of their favorite spot by the invasion of shopkeepers and hotels, who have moved uptown to escape the factories and the houses in their place. So you see, it keeps on and on. There is a movement to keep the East Side in its place, but nothing has yet been done to keep the retailers where they belong or to make the aristocracy stay put."

"And what about you artists?" he suggested. "Aren't you painters, too? For you come along and drive the proletariat out of their homes. You said just a few minutes ago that you live in a house formerly occupied by a family of nine Italian immigrants."

"Yes," agreed the artist pensively. "I wonder where the immigrants move to."

Although the various changes which are rapidly taking place in New York's residential districts may not be due entirely to the city's cycle, it is true that there is a strong Back-to-the-East-Side movement among fashionable New Yorkers. It is, becoming quite the proper thing to live in obscure and dingy neighborhoods lying between Third Avenue and the East River. Mrs. Vanderbilt's proposed migration to this district is only one of many that have occurred in society circles during the past two years. Several exclusive colonies of fashionable folk are already flourishing on sites but recently supporting tenements, and gradually the East Side is taking on a new personality. Whole streets are shedding their dingy poverty like a cloak and emerging in lustrous, modern raiment, remodeled from the failures of their glorious early years.

For, long ago, before the proletariat took complete possession of it, the East Side was a fashionable suburb, scattered with large country estates, with a splendid race-course running down the center of Third Avenue, where the steel riders of the elevated are now planted. Even now, the casual pedestrian, wandering about the region, finds many distinct traces of its aristocratic, rural past.

Among these is a picturesque old stone house bearing on one of its gabled wings the inscription: "Built by a dashing colonel named William Stephens Smith, who was chiefly famous because he married Abigail Adams, the only daughter of President John Adams. Colonel Smith, having served on Washington's staff in the Revolutionary War, was appointed surveyor of the Port of New York during the administration of the first President, at which time he bought a tract of land along the East River and built himself a spacious frame house. The present stone house was originally the stable of this dwelling."

Smith, however, soon fell into financial straits, his property had to be sacrificed at auction, and his house was turned into a fashionable school, while the stable became a popular road house, run by William Niblo. There is an old advertisement of this early inn, which speaks of it as "a superb mansion, and beautifully situated on the banks of the East River. Dinners and tea parties, clubs and societies, can be furnished with all the delicacies of the season. Turf clubs will find this an agreeable resort."

Later, the residence stable passed into the hands of a city surveyor, whose family lived in it until 26 years ago. Then, as the neighborhood became crowded with immigrants, the surveyor was compelled to move, and reluctantly sold the old place to a gas light company. The gas company immediately ruined the landscape and, view by building a huge gas tank, but otherwise left the house alone. According to the Greek goddess, who keeps a store on the corner of the block, an Italian family of large proportions lived in it for a number of years until recently when it was turned, quite appropriately, into an antique shop.

Not far from this sturdy old structure is another large house of Colonial architecture which clearly shows its affiliations with a bygone period when wide verandas and lawns and four-horse coaches were familiar features of the East Side.

It is within short walking distance of these two historic landmarks that the Vanderbilt colony is to start its development. Sutton Place, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, is a quiet and secluded a Fifth-ninth Street—anyone could desire. The little thoroughfare of its tall, narrow, old-fashioned houses look directly out on the East River from the shadow of the beautiful and massive Queensboro Bridge, which stretches across the water like a huge gate shutting out the rest of the world. The houses, most of which have been taken over by Mrs. Vanderbilt's friends and relatives, are to be remodeled at an expense of thousands of dollars and their back yards are to be converted into a single, long garden, with a fountain in the center.

Several other such developments have already started in the same neighborhood, while at least two have been in existence long enough to prove the merits of the East Side as an exclusive residential district. One of these is known as the Turtle Bay Gardens and consists of 21 houses, all newly painted and plumbed and re-floored, with new French windows, and a spacious Italian court, planted with shrubs, and flowers, for a back yard. In addition to the number of well known society people who have moved into the new houses, the estate since then, playing the part of an Irish comedian.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
THE UNKNOWN DEAD
They were not nameless on the day when duty summoned them away; In that despairing, fateful hour, When tyranny left its footprints here, And hurled its blast of iron-borne men, Not one of these was "unknown" then. We knew them when they volunteered, We knew them on the day we cheered And hailed them as they marched away To keep the faith and save the day; They were not unidentified.

Along the battle lines of France, In many a great and glorious fight, When the sky was lit with flames, And the ground was red with blood, They were not unknown to the call— But that was when we knew them all.

They were not sent as men unknown Into the shell-swept battle zone, And when they made their final stand, And heard their comrades' cries, And saw the smoke and fire and blood, That truth should not be swept aside.

Honor these glorious unknown! Let Freedom keep their names alive, And let the world remember them, For they were not unknown to the call— But that was when we knew them all.

Who's Who Today

SIR JAMES CRAIG.
Sir James Craig, member of the British parliament, has been elected first premier of the Northern Ireland parliament under the Irish home rule act.

The election of Sir James Craig as premier means the virtual retirement of Sir Edward Carson from his long-standing leadership of the "loyal people of the six counties."

Sir Edward was offered the premiership Jan. 25 by a deputation from Ulster, but declined the honor, saying he felt "too under the gun" to undertake the arduous duties involved. He agreed, however, for the present to accept the chairmanship of the Ulster parliament in the imperial parliament.

It was then decided to offer the post to Sir James, who agreed to permit his name to be put before the Ulster Unionist Council.

Sir James has been in the imperial parliament since 1906. He was the right-hand man of Sir Edward Carson during the home rule crisis, which was averted by the dramatic intervention of the war.

Sir James, who was made a baronet in January, 1913, for war services, was born at Strand, near County Down, on Jan. 8, 1871. He served in both the South African and World wars. Three ministerial posts have been occupied by him. He was treasurer of the royal household in 1917-18. In 1919-20 he was parliamentary secretary to the ministry of pensions, and in 1920-21 he was financial secretary of the admiralty, which post he still holds.

HOW TUBERCULOSIS SPREADS

No known disease can be spread through the air. A visitor who handles anything such as a book or other object that has been handled by a person with tuberculosis, takes a precaution to wash his hands afterward before he touches unconsciously any of the things, possibly to implant still living germs in the mouth.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Superstitions Information.
Will you please tell me what chemicals to buy at a drug store for testing the urine and how to test for albumin, so one can do this without going to a doctor? What is Bright's disease and what is diabetes? What is the difference between real diabetes and the sugar diabetes? (E. J. V.)

ANSWER.—Bright's disease is an indefinite name applied to nearly any disease of the kidneys. Diabetes is a disease of the kidneys, the part of the body to utilize sugars and starches as fuel as these food substances are in the blood. "Sugar diabetes" is just a bit of redundancy, like saying pneumonia of the lungs or heart disease of the heart. It is not a disease, but a condition. It is a condition in which the body is unable to utilize the sugars and starches as fuel. It is a condition in which the body is unable to utilize the sugars and starches as fuel. It is a condition in which the body is unable to utilize the sugars and starches as fuel.

Neuritis and Scurvy.
Are tonics, heart-balm, and scurvy-balm, or the kidneys of the liver? How much water may a person with dropsy be allowed? (E. J. V.)
ANSWER.—Tonics and scurvy-balm are rather beneficial for the liver and kidneys, but not for the heart. Scurvy-balm is a condition in which the body is unable to utilize the sugars and starches as fuel. It is a condition in which the body is unable to utilize the sugars and starches as fuel. It is a condition in which the body is unable to utilize the sugars and starches as fuel.

What is the difference between the mean level of the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans at the ends of the Panama canal? (J. C.)
A. There is no actual difference in the mean level of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans at both ends of the Panama canal. There is a difference of about 15 feet in the tides at Panama Bay and Colon. As the tide enters the bay, it meets a funnel-shaped shore line, which gradually contracts the tide as it travels inland. As a result, the tide at Panama Bay reaches a maximum of 10 feet above average sea level. When it flows out, it reaches a point 10 feet below average sea level, giving a fluctuation of 20 feet. On the Atlantic side, the fluctuation of the tide is only two feet.

HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1921.
Astrologists read this as a quiet day, with Mars doing a quiet place. Uranus is faintly helpful. All the signs seem to point to much unrest everywhere in the world, and this will continue to be reflected in this country.

Disaster is seen in the focusing of sentiment through propaganda here in the United States. Mars gives warning of foreign misunderstandings will foreign powers. While the planet that is ever powerful in time of war seems to warn now that peace may not be assured. Uranus indicates a sunnier viewpoint on public questions than has characterized many classes of men and women.

This is not a fortunate sway for domestic happiness. There may be serious trouble, owing to the mental attitude which tends towards self-analysis and self-justification. Growth of faith in the power of mind to control material conditions will be apparent this year. Again heated debates in legislative bodies are forecast and congress may be the scene of sensational episodes. Financial problems that affect the people will come much to the front at this time and will cause severe criticism.

The seers prophesy for the first few months of the new administration that the majority of men and women, but later there may be serious discussion that affects foreign policies. The situation of mercury is held to make it seem necessary to prepare for war as at least to provide protection against outside troubles. Growth of sympathy will be evident as the year advances, or at least will be recognized as never before, if the stars are read aright.

Persons who are birthdate, it is should avoid all litigation in the coming year. They should not speculate or take unnecessary risks. CHAPTER LXVIII
VI FACES A PROBLEM

"Well, after that," Bud went on, "I had to go out to the market and take tips on the market from him, and then chuck him."

"No, of course not," Vi said in soothing tones. "But I know from the experience in her eyes that her thoughts were not as calm as her voice."

"So we simply ran around a lot, that's all," Bud said. "Of course, Bud had money and he knew it, so I couldn't pretend I was too poor to go."

"If you said you wanted to save it," Vi insisted, "I would have said, 'No, I don't want to spend less, it's to make more.'"

"Pete had said this, it was his philosophy. It is one of the most beautiful philosophies I have ever heard. It leads sometimes to greater effort and more work, but more often to a blind belief in the future, and to present extravagance."

"You might combine the two a little," Vi remarked—another of the prematurely wise thoughts that she so often, these days, gave voice to.

"Well, anyway," Bud went on impatiently, "Pete and Tools and some other people and I went around a lot. It was pretty lonesome anyway, Vi, with you and Aunt Edna away. A long hot evening in the city isn't much to look forward to at the end of a long hot day of work."

"Poor boy!" Vi was all sympathy. It was she who reached forward and patted his head. She took Bud's hand, and patted it gently.

"And Pete's fond of me, for some reason," Bud went on. "Besides, he was pretty lucky this summer. He had a thousand dollars when he got that tip on the mining stock, and where I cleaned up $700 he cleared up nearly $7,000. He bought a car, a pench, and almost every evening

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 32 years old and have been working as a stenographer since I was 18. When I was young I was engaged to marry a young man who lived in another state. My parents objected to him because I would have to go so far away to live and I was persuaded to break the engagement.

I am not a pretty girl and feel that I am not very interesting because my life has been so dull. We live about a mile from town so that I am able to stay with my parents and come in to work every day. Our place is a small farm, but just as lonely as a big one.

From the time I broke my engagement until about a year ago I have had no man care for me. My brother's friends have come to the house, but they have been several years younger than I am and I never considered them as anything to me although several of them have taken me home.

The young man I met a year ago lives about 10 miles west of here, also on a farm. He loves me, I know, because he comes to see me so often and he has a car. He has decided to determine to have me marry him and finds some way out of every objection I offer. His farm is big and he makes plenty of money and promises to have a car for me. But I don't want to have to work any harder than a city woman, and he says that I can learn to drive his machine and come to town as often as I want to. The one thing that holds me back is the fact that I do not love him as I feel I ought to. I have always read a great deal and I know that I have not a feeling for him such as the best friends in books have. I must like him and if he stopped coming I would not want to die by any means. If I do not marry this man I do not think I will ever marry. What would you advise me to do? Mary.

YELLOW BELLIED CHAT.
Size—Somewhat smaller than a robin.
Plumage—General effect is olive green above and bright yellow below. Upperparts, wings and tail, olive green. White line from eye to bill. White eye ring. Throat and breast bright yellow. Belly white. Sides washed with gray.
Range—Breeds in eastern North America from lower Canada to Gulf States. Winter in Mexico and Central America.
A regular circus clown.

That is precisely what the Yellow-bellied Chat reminds you of. Coupled with a variety of mimicking notes and calls he goes through a constant procession of antics that are grotesque in the extreme. Largest of all the wood warblers he has nothing in common with the rest of the family and if birds were classified by their characteristics alone, he would occupy a perch all by himself, for he is unlike any other bird in the avian line.

It is quite impossible to convey by written word the character of his song. It is a medley of barnyard and woodland cries and calls and is disguised by the name of song. Hearing and catching him at his variety performance are two entirely different propositions. No high perch for him when he starts the show. The performance is staged deep in some birch thicket and your approach is a signal for the curtain to ring down.

Miss Chat is also a ventriloquist at heart. He makes the effort to catch sight of him at his antics all the more difficult. Probably a good reason for this gift is to counteract the habit he has of emitting his discordant potpourri on or near his nest. The nest is jealously guarded by both birds and there is a well founded belief that if Mrs. Chat has reason to think you have discovered its hiding place, she will desert it after first destroying the eggs.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

The "clerk" you sent arrived in good condition, which is a fine example of what's known as "the irony of fate," because if they'd been real cigars they'd probably have arrived all smashed up with nothing left intact but the aroma. The "cigars" you sent, on the other hand, retain everything they ever had, including their "aroma."

I left six of them at my plate this morning instead of a tip for the waiter. He was one of these waiters that brush somebody else's crumbs into your lap and then lean over you, somebody like, to help you read the menu card, and don't like the bird, and this morning I told him I'd then go in for ducks and I would be pleased to have him. And then to prove to him he didn't doubt that I didn't think much of him I left him six of those "cigars." He must have been a desperate man, Tessie. He must have smoked at least two of them, for at dinner time he didn't show up at all. Believe me, Tessie, I felt like a murderer. But there are two cases where murder is excusable, first, to put a human being out of his misery and second to prevent him from putting other people in misery, and I guess that last clause lets me out with an alibi.

You can take this far-reaching as a mild hint that you erred in sending me "cigars" as an aid to economy, even if, as you said, they only cost you three cents per "cigar." If the price of illuminating gas went down to five cents a half-mile, would you advise the world to commit suicide with it?

I see Mary Garden has been appointed director and general temperance chaser of the Chicago Grand Opera Company. It seems that the only profession left where woman's dainty touch hasn't made itself is the profession where it's needed most—the profession of baggage and parcel post handling. When that day comes maybe it will be possible to receive a pie in the mails with its features still distinguishable.

Affectionately, JOE.

NAVY REDUCTION
LEFT TO HARDINGBritain and U. S. Expected to Co-operate on Disarmament.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The influence of President-elect Harding and Elihu Root, both of whom advised the president-elect to advise Congress that it would be unwise to commit America for the present to a reduction of naval armaments, has been a factor in the present attitude of the United States on the subject of disarmament.

About the time that Senator Borah began his campaign for a three-power treaty, the United States and Great Britain would agree to reduce naval armaments, the movement in Congress to cut down naval armaments has been growing to an alarming extent. One day a republican member of Congress happened to be calling upon Secretary Daniels at the navy department.

Daniels sends message. "I'm going to Marion tomorrow," said the republican member with a smile, "my message to Senator Harding."

"Yes," replied Mr. Daniels with a twinkle in his eye. "Poll Harding to look out or he won't have any navy left by the time he gets to the White House. The hill are liable to take it away from him before he gets a chance to negotiate for disarmament."

Several days later the same view was brought to President-elect Harding from other quarters. The plan of having Elihu Root write a letter to members of the house and senate in which he would state in other words that he would prevent action in the house that might embarrass Mr. Harding when he took office. Similarly, conferences with senate leaders ensued and Mr. Harding made it plain that it would be unwise for the United States to take the initiative in disarmament when there was no assurance concerning the attitude of other powers and that it would be particularly embarrassing if the United States scrapped her navy and then sat down to the table with the other powers in an attempt to induce them to do likewise.

The Navy Effective.

Mr. Harding took the view that the United States would have much more influence in a disarmament conference not only if she continued to build the ships which had already been authorized, but if she showed the world that she would continue to expand her navy unless she was forced to do so by other powers.

The action of the senate naval affairs committee in recommending that the United States must have a navy "at least equal to that of any other power" is not a diabolical observation nor the beginning of any new naval armaments race. It is, on the other hand, part of the republican policy of compelling disarmament by building up to a naval strength of any other power so that the example of the United States and Great Britain in agreeing jointly to reduce armaments may be followed by powers of lesser naval strength.

Having succeeded in suspending for the present the movement in Congress to curtail building appropriations, it is to be expected that naval expenditures of other kind will be sharply pruned. Although Mr. Borah and others probably will not consent to be silent on disarmament proposals, the chance of action by the present Congress has passed and the whole problem has been left for the next president of the United States, who really wanted it handled that way so he might have a powerful voice in his first negotiations on a foreign policy.

Great Britain, aware of Mr. Harding's views, promptly called Auckland Geddes, British ambassador here for a conference with the prime minister and the British cabinet. When Sir Auckland left the United States he knew that the whole question of disarmament would be taken up in the very beginning of the Harding administration and that he could spread the month of February in no better way than in formulating proposals for Mr. Harding's consideration during the month of March.

British See Benefit. Although the supremacy of the seas is something dear to the heart of every Englishman, the argument that international exchange will improve and that the financial burdens of the British public will be made considerably lighter by a naval building agreement with the United States makes an effective appeal perhaps not to sentiment but to sound economics on both sides of the Atlantic.

The report of the senate naval affairs committee doesn't mean continued naval expansion, however ambitious sounding it may be. It does mean the beginning of a disarmament process and less taxation for there is every reason to believe that Great Britain means to cooperate with the United States in reducing the size of national budgets in order to avoid struggling desperately to get back to normal.

At the State Capital

(An Associated Press.)

Madison, Wis., Feb. 11.—The serious financial situation that faces Wisconsin as a result of present depression will be brought out by Governor John J. Blaine in his second message to the legislature to be delivered, it is expected, on Tuesday or Wednesday of the coming week. Legislators now say that they are in a dilemma, caught between the need of increased expenses to be met out of a steadily decreasing revenue, and the demand of the people for lower taxes. State departments and commissions have found it impossible to keep within the appropriations during the past year, leaving the state with a deficit of hundreds of thousands of dollars to meet at this time. On top of the deficit has come the demand on the part of all branches of the government and state institutions for more funds.

For the first time the estimated receipts for the fiscal year have been below the estimated receipts for the year ending June 30, 1920. Estimated expenditures amount to $31,000,000, while the receipts total $29,100,000. The deficit for the year ending June 30, 1921, is estimated at $1,900,000. The deficit for the year ending June 30, 1920, was $1,500,000.

The state board of public affairs has cut the budgets below the departmental estimates in its recommendations to the legislature.

Present business conditions point to a much lower tax return than was estimated for the coming year. It was said. Corporations and individuals will be unable to pay the taxes which will be due by the standard of the past four years, due to the general depression. It will be pointed out that state property has been allowed to go unimproved during the past two years. State Engineer Mack has told the finance committee that requiring repairs work on state property amounted to approximately $2,000,000. Governor Blaine will recommend an increase of the income tax rate, a surtax on incomes, exemption from taxation of improvements up to $2,000, and increase in the inheritance tax rate.

The Severson surtax bill and the Dahl income tax bill are both administration measures which it is expected will be endorsed in the next session. The Severson bill would raise an additional tax of $6,000,000 from increased rates on larger earnings of both individuals and corporations and by removal of the personal property offset.

There will be no recommendation for an increased tax rate on general property, which now bears most of the burden of support of the state. The governor will probably state his intention to follow the precedent set by the Phillip administration of not having a general property tax for state purposes.

Recommendations of the governor for curtailed expenditures and for a surtax on incomes as the best method of raising the needed increase in revenue.

Extradition of Frank J. Davey.

Discussion on the Madison amendment to the Madison prohibition enforcement law is scheduled for Thursday.

Lawyers have ruled the educational boards as well as the state legislatures of Wisconsin, according to figures compiled by the state board of education, for the information of the senate committee on education and public welfare which it considers the basis for the bill to provide for farmer and labor representation.

Senator Titus in his bill would make at least two farmer representatives and two labor representatives on the university and horticultural school regents and the state board of education.

Plans are already laid for the first political lineup of the assembly during the present session when vote is taken on award of the official state paper on the calendar for consideration next Wednesday. Resolutions introduced have named the two local afternoon papers, The Capital Times and The Wisconsin State Journal. The Times is an administration paper and The Journal is an anti-Blaine paper.

revenue will be received favorably by the legislators according to general expression by them. Economy has been declared to be the watchword of the lawmakers who have come instructed by their constituents that expenses must be cut. Wisconsin state parks, with additions now being considered by the legislature, have more scenic interest than any parks east of the Yellowstone and are capable of furnishing picnic, camping and fishing grounds for the population of a dozen states according to witnesses appearing before the assembly committee on state affairs.

Park plans were discussed in connection with the resolution by Assemblyman J. R. Barr and T. M. Corwin asking for appointment of a legislative committee to investigate the advisability of purchasing the Delta of the Wisconsin and the Northern Lakes park with the state. The Delta includes the rocky gorge and towering cliffs along the Wisconsin river in the vicinity of Kilbourne. Seventy-six thousand people made the trip by steamer through the Delta last year, the committee was told, paying more than $100,000 in receipts and other sources declared the park could be made a paying proposition by the state.

The proposed Northern Lakes park embraces 8,500 acres of virgin timber and about sixteen lakes with an area of approximately 2,000 acres, lying in Price and Sawyer counties. The tract is one of the few large areas of virgin timber left in the state.

Blues Play Beloit Saturday; First Time in Two Years.

Copyright 1920 by Geo. McManus.

ELEVENTH YEAR IN LOCAL ATHLETICS

Starting as a neighborhood ball team known as the Monterey Sluggers, the Janesville All-Stars have passed along until Thursday night they celebrated their eleventh birthday with a blowout at the home of their president, Clarence (Ted) Hager, 523 Locust street. Guests of honor were A. E. Bergmann, athletic director of the local Y. M. C. A., and Frank Sinclair, sporting editor of the Gazette. A big spread featured the occasion.

"It is remarkable to me," said Mr. Bergmann to the boys, "that you have been able to keep together so long. Not affiliated until a short time ago with any organization, it shows excellent qualities of leadership." In 1910, Hager and Charles Bick with other grade school boys started the ball team. There were five or six other teams around the town, but the Stars (then known as Sluggers) beat them all and then would take one or two players away from the defeated team to strengthen their own. As time went on, they came to the point where they were going to other towns in the vicinity and making a fairly good record. Then they got suits and now they are recognized as a coming junior ball club.

They added basketball, playing first in the streets, until now they have won 76 games so far this season, affiliated with the "Y." They tried their hand at football last season, only to give it up after playing a couple of games because of the expenses attached to equipment.

GLASH SATURDAY; SECONDS TO PLAY DELAVAN TONIGHT

Janesville high school seconds will represent the institution at Delavan tonight against the state institute for the deaf. Saturday afternoon at 2:30 the regulars of the local school will battle Beloit at the college gym in the Gateway city.

When the Delavan boys played here earlier in the season, the first team took them into camp with a top-sided score. Since then they have showed considerable improvement and if the blue seconds fail to hold them, some of the regulars will be shut in to hold the day.

Did Not Play 1920.

Saturday's game will be the first time in more than a season that Janesville and Beloit have met upon the basketball court. Some difficulty was experienced in 1920 and the match failed to take place. The teams could not be brought together. The Janesville boys forgot the fact that they have a tough game on their hands and will journey to the city to the south filled with a spirit of rivalry. Still smarting from the effects of the terrific beating handed them by the Beloit football team late in the 1920 season, the Janesville boys will try to come back with a win.

Blues Improve.

Comparison shows that Janesville lost to University High and Beloit defeated the Madison school. Since the time that the blues played the Capital city five, which was much earlier than the time Beloit played them, the local boys have improved a hundred percent and are looking like a house fire. Their chances tomorrow are good.

The seconds who play tonight are Dawson and McDermott, forwards; Smith, center; Raubach and Kelly, guards; with Jennings, forward and Seman, guard, substitutes.

Tomorrow's players will be Gidley and Bick, forwards; Crowley, center; Lane and Newman, guards.

The first was Devereaux Milburn, who next April is coming over to England as captain of the All-American polo team.

YOST WANTS DATE WITH CALIFORNIA U.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 11.—With Michigan scheduled to meet California in a dual track and field meet at Berkeley in the spring, there is a possibility that the football eleven which humbled Ohio State in the great intercollegiate contest on New Year's day, may come to Ferry field for a game this fall.

JEWTRAW AND MOORE TIED IN ICE RACES

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Joe Jewtraw of Lake Placid and Joe Moore of New York city tied for honors on Thursday at the opening of the international ice racing championships. Jewtraw won the 200 yard race an inch or so ahead of Charles Gorman, and Moore took the mile race after Jewtraw had fallen over George Thompson of Chicago, who fell directly in his path.

Darlington. A deserted house on the outskirts of the town of Darlington, S. C., was the scene of a gang of gamblers. It was raided by Chief of Police Moran and a number of officers. Twelve men were arrested and paid fines in court.

Rifle Shooting on the Boom

With Club Here on the Jump

By PETER P. CARNEY

Editor National Sports Syndicate

Just as the circus is the biggest ever to the press agent, every season is the greatest ever to the "bug." That goes for 1920 and chipping in with that spirit of optimism we want to add that 1921 will be an even greater year for rifle shooting than any year that has been torn from the calendar. Janesville Rifle Club will experience this boom.

There were more than 1,300 shooters in the National matches at Camp Perry and more than two million rounds of 30 calibre ammunition were shot. About a million rounds of other ammunition were used. It is more than likely that the National Matches will again be held at Camp Perry and the dates will most likely be from July 20 to August 23.

There was a great revival in the art of rifle shooting during 1920. Hundreds of clubs were formed, and the great majority were organized to shoot the small bore rifle.

Small bore rifle shooting is the coming sport. One needs to be just as accurate, possibly more so, with the small bore as with the 30 calibre. It is no child's play. We feel free in saying that the small bore range at Camp Perry this year, if it is central, will be the most active spot on the grounds. An idea of the increase in interest in rifle shooting is shown in the growth of the Winchester Junior Rifle Corps in 1920. This organization, for boys and girls, under the leadership of the National Rifle Association, secured 22,000 new members going from 25,000 to 47,000.

The colleges took to small bore shooting and this winter the Yale team is shooting matches with 15 other college teams, including Oxford and Cambridge. This brings collegiate rifle shooting to the forefront with an international match. Only a few years ago a rifle range was a novelty in a college, now few colleges are without them.

Janesville in Big Sheet.

The National Rifle Association is conducting its national indoor gallery matches this winter with Janesville competing and there is a new national organization in the field looking for patronage—the American Small-bore League. Both organizations have excellent programs. The A. S. L. will conduct an outdoor championship at Tonawanda, N. Y., in September, and in this season will be chosen to represent the United States in all nations match.

DR. EMIL SCHWEGLER

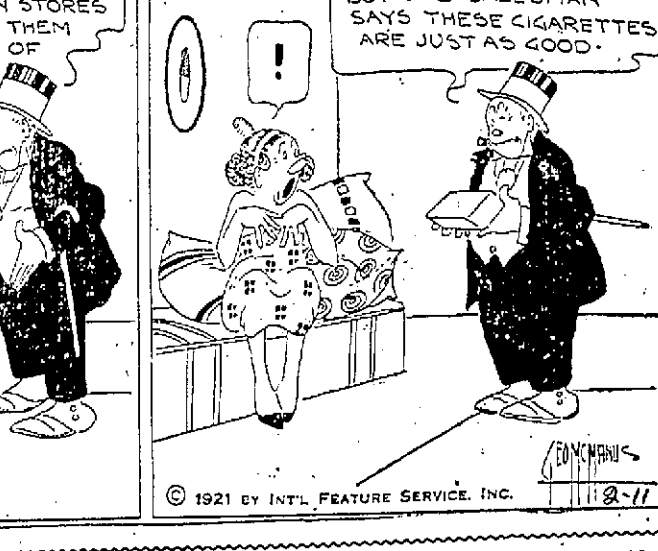

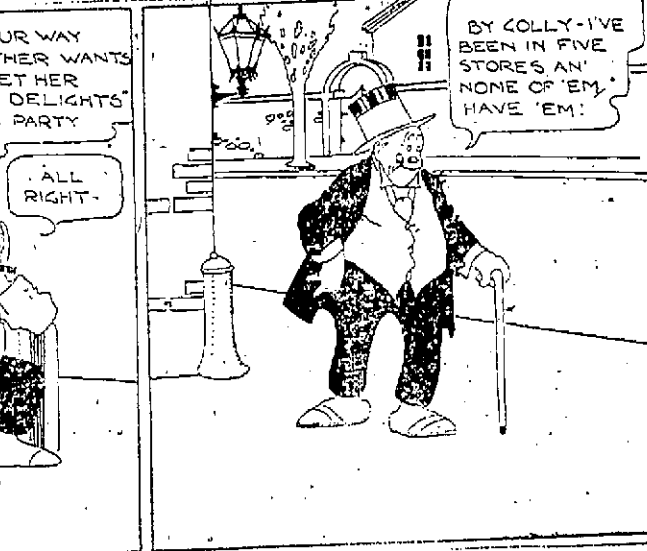

This competition should be beneficial to the small bore rifle game. American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars organization have taken to small bore rifle shooting and the Field Museum in Jackson Park, Chicago, considered the finest building in the United States when it was erected in 1892, has been taken over by the American Legion and turned into a rifle range.

Here and There, but Mostly Here

By FRANK SINCLAIR, Sporting Editor.

Rugged from the outdoor life of the North Woods, M. J. Patchen, former game warden and sheriff of Winnebago county, dropped in for a chat this morning. Patchen has an idea with respect to the one-buck law and says he has five hunting clubs of the state agreeing with him.

His idea is to have the open season during the first 20 days of November instead of the last 10. He says the deer are running then and make good hunting, while during the last part of the month they are mostly in the swamps and their mates come out making it risky to pull your trigger for fear of hitting a doe. Then he makes a big dash for the woods, not crowd the trains, the hotels nor the woods.

ROCK COUNTY SOIL IS BEST IN STATE

Survey Maps of State Being Received By Farmers Here.

"Rock county is one of the leading agricultural counties in the state of Wisconsin," says W. J. Gels of the department of the University of Wisconsin in speaking of counties which the soil survey has recently completed. Maps of the survey are now being circulated in this county.

Twenty-six types of soil have been found in Rock county. These range from sand of low agricultural value, which is limited in extent in comparison with the clay heavy prairie soils of very high value. The heavy prairie lands occupy about 42 per cent of the county.

"Rock county is just east of Janesville, is one of the richest prairie sections in Wisconsin," Mr. Gels states. "It consists of two types. Level and black soil, which is called Waukesha silt loam, and a gently rolling, black soil with clay underneath. The latter is called Carleton silt loam."

Corn is one of the best crops for the county because it is well adapted to the soil and the longest growing season occurs in this part of the state.

Good Pasture Land.
A black lowland soil, called Clyde silt loam, is the best of any for corn. When properly drained, the survey reports, most of the new use is for pasture, but there are good outlets so that it can be drained. Tilling machines have been in operation the past year, and the survey reports that the value of this land is increased by the price of some of the prairie land. All types of prairie and upland soils in this section are likely to be in line of time to produce maximum yields.

"It can safely be said that 80 per cent of the soils of Rock county are good," declares Mr. Gels, "and the distribution of time is the most important item in their improvement."

Must Use Lime.
Alfalfa can be grown to good advantage on most of the land it is found. If the soil is corrected by lime, but it does best on those with open subsoil which contain limestone. Several light colored soils, which are called timothy soils, which are called alfalfa soils, are well suited to alfalfa. There are 74,000 acres of this soil in the northern half of the county.

"Prairie soils, and those which respond very well to phosphate fertilizers. In the early days, much grain was raised which took away large amounts of phosphorus and none was returned. In dairy farms, the soil is enriched by the return of the manure, but there is not enough phosphorus to make up what is taken off in crops. Local markets in Rock county are excellent, and the outlook for the future is even brighter."

Guinea Pigs Turn Backs on Home Brew.
Boston.—Because guinea pigs have been found to accept the Volstead act literally and turn their backs to allowing home brew, the little animals which were once popular for their meat and fur, are now being kept in cages and are being sold for laboratory purposes.

It was the fond belief of home brew makers some time ago that they tried their amateur productions on the guinea pig, human life and digestion might be saved. The guinea pig had proven a satisfactory subject for scientific tests and according to the reasoning of the sensitive animal survived their brew. It was ripe for human consumption. If the pig died, it was in a good cause, and the brewer would again be a liquor fit to drink by man and beast.

"Pigs is pigs" but the guinea variety is more recent than pig and has been found to value their lives above the convoluted compensations of liquor samplers. Those who have tried their brews on the guinea pigs have found that no amount of coaxing can bring the sensitive rodents to the flowing bowl of kitchen-made drinks. They submit to the administration of straws and serums in the interest of science, but any three alcoholic beverages to them. Thousands of purchases were made when it was reported that guinea pigs could test the margin of safety in unsanitary contraband. Now they are a drug on the market, ready to be doled out to hospitals and scientists for use in routine experiments.

Latest Style in Dogs Is German Police Dog.
New York.—"Latest style in dogs" is the title given the German police dogs by Dean W. Horace Hoskins of the New York University Veterinary college, who says fashions in dogs fluctuate as they do in dress.

The Boston terrier and Pekinese are also fashionable Dean Hoskins said.

The Boston terrier has enjoyed a long period of popularity than any other dog, having been in vogue for 30 years, and is still fairly popular, he said.

The pug dog and the old black and tan or rat terrier, which enjoyed an immense popularity in the 80's and 90's are almost extinct, and the deer head, which was the dog of the 1900's, were favorites in 1900 are well liked. Dean Hoskins lamented the passing of the collie, and regretted the current vogue for the poodle dog, who still breeds them. The chow, which were favorites in 1900 are well liked. Dean Hoskins lamented the passing of the collie, and regretted the current vogue for the poodle dog, who still breeds them.

Liming Gains Favor in County; Exhibit Feb. 15
Rock and other counties in southern Wisconsin are well represented in the liming and soil improvement campaign being undertaken by the Farm Bureau and progressive agriculture interests.

More than 2,000 tons of lime, either natural pulverized or the dry kiln type were used in Rock county during the last year, according to figures available at the office of the county agricultural agent.

SNOWS SNOWFALLS ON NEW YORK FARM
Aven, N. Y.—When Peter Finlin went out to do the chores one morning recently he was mystified by the sight of a large number of huge snowballs scattered over his farm. On the 26-acre field there were hundreds of them ranging in size from six to 18 inches in diameter. Lead of bare ground showing the distance it had traveled in forming. Mr. Finlin and neighbors who gathered to study the odd spectacle decided that the wind which had blown a gale the night before had whipped up small particles of "good packing" snow and started them down the field, some of the particles gathering up additional snow until balls had been formed that were too heavy for the wind to move further. In the same way, the direction the wind had been blowing. To record the unusual freak of wind and snow, Mr. Finlin sent for the correspondent. Heuffed by the snowballs of more than 1,000 in diameter.
